A two-part celebration of the work of pioneering experimental filmmaker Tony Hill

Venue	Event One - Royal Dockyard Church, Chatham / Event Two - No34, Sittingbourne
Starts	Wednesday, February 24, 2016
Ends	Saturday, February 27, 2016
Address	Event One - The Historic Dockyard, Chatham, Kent, ME4 4TE
Location	South East England
Organiser	51zero

51zero/voyager is pleased to invite you to two special events with celebrated filmmaker Tony Hill, where he will present his pioneering films and groundbreaking filmmaking techniques. Internationally renowned, Hill makes experimental short films that are somewhere between sculpture and cinema. To create his visually challenging and timelessly beautiful imagery, he develops his own camera rigs, ingeniously using mirrors and unusual lenses, and sometimes humorous vantage points to make us rethink our assumptions about perspective, gravity, scale and movement.

Event One

Talk and discussion with Tony Hill and curator Keith Whittle

University of Kent, Wednesday 24 February, 6:00-9:00pm

Presented by Tony Hill, the talk will explore his unique film production techniques highlighting the formalistic qualities and contexts at play in his work. The talk will be followed by discussion with curator Keith Whittle exploring Hill's aesthetic and conceptual approach and the research and production processes involved in the making of his films.

Event Two

Screening and Q&A with Tony Hill

No34, Saturday 27 February, 2:00-4:00pm

A specially curated screening of films by experimental filmmaking pioneer Tony Hill, including several seminal works produced between 1970-2000 and premier of more recent works. The screening will be followed by an Artist Filmmakers' Salon, offering participants the opportunity to meet the artist and ask questions directly in an informal peer group session.
